ESTHER GEORGE DIES AT 85

Esther D. George, 85, died November 8, 1992, at Lebanon, Ohio, of complications due to advanced age. She was Librarian of United Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio, from 1947 to 1968. She was active in ATLA during its early history, having served on a number of committees of the Association. Ms. George had also served as librarian at Deaconess Hospital in Dayton and at the Dayton and Montgomery County Public Library prior to her service at the Seminary. In 1968 she became curator of the Evangelical United Brethren Archives of the United Methodist Church at Dayton, retiring in 1974. She was educated at North Central College, Naperville, Illinois, and held a library science degree from Case Western Reserve University. Memorial services were held at Otterbein Home, Lebanon, Ohio, her residence for the last three years of her life. Interment was at Findlay, Ohio.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Your Board of Directors has just completed an intense but fruitful mid-winter meeting. A summary of the discussions and actions from that meeting is included elsewhere in this issue of the Newsletter. What I would like to highlight here is a process of policy definition that the Board is pursuing as we implement the reorganization begun three years ago.

A primary goal of the reorganization was to consolidate the three existing governing boards of ATLA into one entity. Responsibility for all ATLA programs - Index, Preservation, and Member Services - is now lodged with one Board of Directors. This concentration of responsibility has forced the new unified Board to clarify its role in overseeing and managing the Association. In order to assist the clarification process, the Board in 1991 engaged consultant John Carver to present his model of how boards should operate.

Various people in ATLA have expressed concern that members of the Board may have become "Carver addicts." I don't believe that is the case. We have not adopted his model hook, line, and sinker; all of us agree that Carver's principles must be modified to suit the particular situation of ATLA. Nevertheless, we see much that is useful in his approach to the work of a governing board, and we were encouraged by the avenues it opened for us to make our reorganization fully functional. Therefore it will continue to be appropriate to refer to Carver from time to time as the platform from which we are launching our work as a Board.

One of Carver's principles that has proven to be a powerful tool for understanding the Board's work is that a governing board should take as a major task the definition of an organization's broad goals: the "why" and "for what" for which it exists. Out of the definition of these goals or ends comes the enunciation of policies that determine how those ends will be achieved. The Board determines the level of detail it wishes to attain in its policy statements and then turns them over to staff for implementation.

The foundation for this process, therefore, is the statement of goals or organizational ends, sometimes known as a mission statement. A fairly detailed version of ATLA's purposes is included in its Certificate of Incorporation. Other versions, in more recognizable "mission statement" format, have been developed at various times. The most recent text was suggested by the Strategic Planning Task Force as part of its work on the reorganization. The Board spent time at the recent meeting reviewing this version as part of a broad statement of ATLA policies. We want to share it with you here to begin the process of discussing and finally owning it as an Association.

The mission of the American Theological Library Association is to foster the study of theology and religion by enhancing the development of theological and religious libraries and librarianship.

In pursuit of this mission, the association undertakes:

- (1) to foster the professional growth of its members, and to enhance their ability to serve their constituencies as administrators and librarians;
- (2) to advance the profession of theological librarianship,

and to assist theological librarians in defining and interpreting the proper role and function of libraries in theological education;

(3) to promote quality library and information services in support of teaching, learning, and research in theology, religion, and related disciplines, and to create such tools and aids (including publications) as may be helpful in accomplishing this; and

(4) to stimulate purposeful collaboration among librarians of theological libraries and religious studies collections, and to develop programmatic solutions to information-related problems common to those librarians and collections.

Some of you may wonder about the inclusion of language about religious studies collections. The Board spent time considering this issue and decided that, though our emphasis is clearly on theological collections and librarianship as we have always understood it, the times demand that we be open to the concerns of those in the broader context of religion. The vitality of ATLA's new College and University Section attests to the presence and commitment of these folk. It is to ATLA's benefit to welcome them and to encourage their activity among us.

I hope all of you will consider this statement of ATLA's mission and purpose. The Board plans to host some group discussions of this issue at the annual conference in June. I look forward to seeing many of you then and to hearing from you your vision for ATLA.

REPORT FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Monograph Preservation Program. A further sharp decline in subscription income to Phase 7 of the Monograph Preservation Program from July through December 1992 threatened its continuance. This situation presented ATLA staff with two options. On the one hand, ATLA could terminate the Program immediately. This choice would lead to a compounding of the Program's deficit agreed on by the Board of Directors and staff. On the other hand, ATLA could request NEH to consider significant changes in the use of NEH funds for the third and final year of its grant to the Program, which would enable ATLA to complete the current and final Phase of the Program without exceeding the planned deficit. These changes included the use of NEH funds to cover costs, in addition to filming, for minimal level cataloging, preparation of materials, and filming inspection. If approved, the "cost" to the Program would be fewer books preserved.

In December, John Bollier's efforts to raise the final matching monies bore fruit with a $70,000 grant from the Henry Luce Foundation. With the Luce grant, ATLA staff had raised the total $285,000 in Federal matching funds for the grant. ATLA has also received notice that all of the Federal matching funds have been encumbered for the project.

In early February we received approval from NEH for the proposed changes for the third and final year of the grant. It is our plan to complete cataloging by August 1993, filming by December 1993, and final inspection of all film by March 1994. We are investigating alternatives for deploying the ATLA Preservation staff at the completion of Phase 7 and the end of the current NEH grant.

In January, ATLA libraries were invited to submit letters of intent to participate in the revised Monograph Preservation Program by February 22, 1993. We have received several excellent projects to date. We look forward to having several more by the deadline.

Serials Preservation Program. In December 1992 ATLA was awarded a three-year NEH grant totaling $482,986 ($332,986 outright and $150,000 Federal matching funds) for the preservation filming of 300 significant journals in religion published from 1875 to 1950. This project will focus on periodical collections at the Andover-Harvard Library of Harvard Divinity School, The Burke Library of Union Theological Seminary (NY), Speer Library of Princeton Theological Seminary, and Yale Divinity School Library, and will also draw on serials collections in other ATLA libraries.

ATS-ATLA Relations. One of the reorganizational goals of the ATLA Board of Directors was to improve our relations and work with the Association of Theological Schools. In January, Linda Corman (ATLA vice president) and I had an opportunity to meet with ATS Executive Director Jim Waits, and Associate Director Dan Aleshire in Pittsburgh. We spent the better part of a day reviewing and identifying areas of mutual concern for resourcing theological education and outlining a process of working together on these concerns. Based on these discussions, ATS and ATLA will each appoint three representatives to a joint committee that will work on ways of addressing our mutual interests. This committee will hold two more meetings in 1993. We will report to the members about these meetings.

Many of you may be aware that ATS has begun a formal process to assess its accreditation standards. Our colleague, Sara Myers (Iliff School of Theology), has been appointed by ATS to represent theological libraries on its Steering Committee for the Quality and Accreditation Project. I am sure Sara will keep us apprised of the work of this committee.

Current Crises Facing ATLA Members. I want to turn to another matter that is intertwined with everything that ATLA does in trying to fulfill its mission. The perspective that I set forth is shared by a number of my colleagues and staff. We have not reached some of our conclusions lightly. We think that there are still opportunities to change things, but time is of the essence. In the context of the economic and environmental challenges, administrative staff views theological librarians and their institutions as an endangered species. Mainline denominational institutions have not grasped the urgent truth that merging for strength and downsizing is now and not in the future. As our seminaries continue to struggle to survive, they will be under renewed pressure to cut programs and resources (read libraries). These institutional decisions will further marginalize theological libraries and librarianship. Let us take a look at what has happened.

A number of our library directors have retired, resigned, or been terminated in the past three years, often under the guise of resignation. It appears that their institutional leadership does not understand the importance and timeliness of replacing these librarians with library professionals. Often while these libraries are "leaderless," they are without an advocate for the importance of the library and its staff as a pedagogical resource for theological education. ATLA also suffers because it lacks an interpreter of the programs and services it provides the institution.

Related to the institutional leadership problem is the process by which some of our colleagues have been dismissed. Does ATLA have a "corporate way" of responding, whether we agree with a dismissal decision or not? What do accrediting standards have to say about performance, evaluation, and due process with respect to termination? Obviously, the current standards do not have much to say about librarians, but they afford faculty some protection. As seminary administrators will be under increasing pressure to balance their budgets and libraries and librarians are viewed as marginal to the educational process, it is obvious to me that any future accreditation standards must not only address issues of quality but also of values. Theological libraries and theological librarians are essential to theological education. Seminary administrators and boards must come to understand the value of theological librarianship in the educational enterprise.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

In January I had the privilege of meeting with the Annual Conference Committee in Vancouver, British Columbia, making plans for this year's conference, June 16-19, 1993. Our hosts will be the Vancouver School of Theology, the Regent/Carey Library, and St. Mark's College. It's a beautiful location, and plans are shaping up for a full and exciting conference. A preliminary conference-information mailing will go out from this office in late February, with full registration materials to follow in March.

Conference travel information will be included in the February mailing. I urge you to make travel plans as soon as possible, since Vancouver is a popular destination and flights will fill up quickly.

For ATLA personal members who have never before attended an annual conference, ATLA is offering an extra incentive this year. ATLA will pay the 1993 conference registration fee for members who are first-time attendees. This offer also extends to pre-conference continuing education fees, for members attending these events for the first time. More information is available elsewhere in the Newsletter.

Voting members of ATLA will have already received their ballots for ATLA Board of Directors elections by the time you read this. In past years, biographical information about the candidates appeared in the February issue of the Newsletter. That information is now mailed out along with the ballots. After the election is complete, the biographical information for the newly-elected Directors will be published in the Newsletter, to serve as an introduction to them.

Thanks to those institutional members who responded to the ATLA statistics questionnaire. I will be distributing an initial report to the institutions for additions or corrections. This year, almost twice as many respondents as last year used the option of submitting the ATS form. Based on a recent meeting between ATS and ATLA representatives, we expect to work more closely with ATS in the future on gathering, reporting, and interpreting library statistics.

Executive Secretary, ATLA

WORK OF MORGAN JOHNSON IS EXHIBITED
AT PITTS THEOLOGY LIBRARY

"Missionary Cartoonist: An Exhibit of the Cartoons of the Rev. Dr. Morgan Johnson" is on display at the Pitts Theology Library, February-May, 1993. Johnson was a United Methodist missionary who served in Zimbabwe and drew cartoons for Umbowo, the Zimbabwe (then Rhodesia) Annual Conference newspaper, from 1965-1978, when it was banned. The exhibit consists primarily of examples of Johnson's political cartoons with commentary. The nineteen-page exhibit catalog is available to requests sent with self-address stamped envelope to: M. Patrick Graham, Pitts Theology Library, Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia 30322.

ATLA RECEIVES NEW GRANTS FOR PRESERVATION

In December 1992 ATLA received two grants totaling $552,986. One grant will support a new Periodical Preservation Program and the other will provide additional support for the Monograph Preservation Program, which began in 1985.

The National Endowment for the Humanities Office of Preservation awarded ATLA a three-year (1993-1995) grant of $482,986 ($332,986 outright and $150,000 in matching funds) for a Periodical Preservation Program. This program will preserve approximately 300 periodicals in religion, 1875-1950. These materials were carefully selected by staff, assisted by an advisory group of scholars and librarians. The libraries at Harvard Divinity School, Yale Divinity School, Union Theological Seminary in New York, and Princeton Theological Seminary have all agreed to furnish these journals for preservation filming on 35mm roll film. ATLA will distribute positive copies to libraries on demand. Research Publications, Inc. will collate, catalog, and film these journals at their facilities in Woodbridge, Connecticut.

The Henry Luce Foundation also awarded ATLA a two-year (1992-1993) grant of $70,000 in support of the Monograph Preservation Program. The impact of this grant is almost double its size, as it provides the remaining $60,000 required for ATLA to receive the full matching portion of the current $600,000 NEH grant supporting the Monograph Preservation Program. In addition, it provides $10,000 for the program's administrative overhead costs in 1992 and 1993.

These grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Henry Luce Foundation, along with the grants received earlier in 1992 from the Pew Charitable Trusts and the Parish of Trinity Church in the City of New York, bring ATLA's 1992 grant awards to $807,986.

Beginning in March, ATLA will undertake its second annual giving fund effort, to be designated this year as Opportunity Giving. ATLA will use most Opportunity Giving contributions to expand its member services, an area not now supported by grants. Additional professional education opportunities regionally and nationally, subsidized registration fees for members attending the Annual Conference for the first time, and help with membership fees for prospective members in developing countries are some of the causes to benefit from these gifts. However, donors may also designate their gifts for the Index Program, the Preservation Program or the Endowment Fund.

Director of Development, ATLA

REPORT FROM OCLC THEOLOGICAL USERS GROUP (TUG)

All the cliches about change in libraries seem particularly relevant to theological libraries which are members of OCLC at the present time. Hardly a week goes by without another mailing introducing some new service or deal. One of the purposes of TUG is to help us cope with the changes OCLC is bringing to the services our libraries provide to their patrons. We look forward to our get-togethers at the ATLA Annual Conference. In preparation for Vancouver in June, let me summarize some of the changes going on, and pose some questions that will help us prepare for our time together.

1) OCLC has implemented gradual changes in its pricing schedule in recent years; this "contribution pricing" was designed to increase both the reward for contributions to the database and the charge for uses of it.

Questions: Have your OCLC charges increased, decreased, or stayed the same? Have you changed the way you use OCLC in order to adapt to the price changes (i.e., increased the number of original/new inputs; immediately entered original/new cataloging rather than waiting for another library to do it; reduced the number of searches; improved your searching techniques, etc.)?

2) OCLC has introduced the PRISM system, the first major transformation of OCLC's online cataloging system since the first system began more than twenty years ago. The interlibrary loan system migrated to PRISM in December and CAT CD450 in February.

Questions: Have you found the system to be faster? Has the "scan title" function helped your staff? Has the new telecommunications system been better or worse or about the same?

3) OCLC has offered the EPIC service, an online reference system for librarians and experienced searching since January 1990. EPIC provides access to the OCLC database, the OCLC-created ArticleFirst and ContentsFirst databases, as well as thirty other databases.

Questions: Have you found OCLC prices competitive with those of other database vendors? Is OCLC quicker? Easier to use? Have you developed preferences among the various ways of paying for database searching? How have you made these services available to your patrons? Have these new services increased the staff time expended to help patrons locate the materials they need?

4) OCLC has implemented the FirstSearch Catalog, with its interface for library patrons; twenty-nine databases are currently available. Document ordering on FirstSearch debuted in January, and now the OCLC SiteSearch capability brings us an important step closer to the ideal of one-stop information service.

Questions: Have you made these services directly available to patrons? What are the financial implications of offering this service (and of the different payment options)? The staffing implications?

5) OCLC is creating an optional link between the FirstSearch and PRISM ILL systems which will be available this spring.

Questions: Do you plan to allow patrons to make their own interlibrary loan requests? What are the financial implications of such a program? The staffing implications?

6) OCLC has made its Reference Services available over the INTERNET; and a study of the feasibility of INTERNET access to cataloging and resource sharing products and services is underway.

Questions: For those already on the INTERNET, is this a useful service to you? For those not on the INTERNET, what are the potential benefits to you?

7) OCLC has announced that PRISM keyword searching will be available in the spring of 1993.

Questions: What benefits do you expect from this service? How much will it cost you to use? Do you plan to make it directly available to all patrons, select patrons, or no patrons?

8) OCLC has announced that M300 workstations, once the workhorse of OCLC member libraries, will no longer be supported after July 1, 1993.

Questions: What plans do you have for your M300 after that date? Are you speeding up work in the meantime?

OCLC has made a number of other changes which may be mentioned more briefly. Last year, OCLC completed an effort to remove duplicate records from the database, and over 600,000 records were deleted. (They have a way to go; just the other day, I found two different sets of duplicate records in one hour on PRISM!) OCLC has entered into an agreement with the Consortium of University Research Libraries (CURL) in the United Kingdom to enter 2.5 million of their records onto PRISM. OCLC is field testing a multi-access access software system which would permit workstations and terminals throughout a campus network to access OCLC. OCLC is co-producer of an electronic periodical and its Forest Press division has unveiled an Electronic Dewey Decimal Classification System.

OCLC does want to hear from its member libraries, I have been assured by our contact person, Ann T. Dodson. You can write to her at: 6565 Frantz Road, Dublin, Ohio 43017-3395, call her at 614-764-6390, or fax her at 614-764-0155. Concerns can be funneled to her through me, at Reformed Theological Seminary Library, 5422 Clinton Boulevard, Jackson, Mississippi 39209, telephone 601-922-4988, ext. 266, fax 601-922-1153. Finally, see you in Vancouver!

REPORT FROM ATLA LIAISON TO CC:DA

The ALA Committee on Cataloging: Description and Access (CC:DA) met during the 1993 ALA Midwinter in Denver, Colorado, on January 23 and 25. This report covers the main topics of CC:DA with an addendum from a related ALA cataloging meeting.

AACR2rev: The Joint Steering Committee for Revision of AACR2 has come to agreement on a number of changes since the revised edition of AACR2 was published. The packet containing the new revisions to AACR2rev will be published during the second half of 1993. (A most welcome change for music catalogers, for instance, now permits the media designator [sound recording] to follow the first (#a) title statement in the 245, when there are multiple title/composer statements in that field; this change will enable patrons to identify sound recordings more easily in the online public access catalog.) As to speeding up the current AACR2 revision process, the Joint Steering Committee recognizes the need but has not found a feasible means at present to achieve this goal.

Machine-readable AACR2: AACR2rev is being converted to machine-readable form by use of "Standard Generalized Markup Language" (SGML). Two chapters were prepared in MARC format last fall, but design decisions still need to be made. The "marked up" text will be made available to software vendors interested in providing retrieval interface. The Joint Steering Committee hopes to have two online copies of AACR2rev, the first being the most recently published text, the second being the Committee's working copy with ongoing revisions.

Close-captioning Information on Video Recordings and Motion Pictures: Representatives of the hearing-impaired community have expressed their desire for clear indication on cataloging records when items are captioned for the hearing-impaired. Use of a general media designator was suggested, e.g. [close captioned] placed after the title; the Library of Congress, however, would prefer using a note in the language field (Rule 7.7B2): Close captioned for the hearing-impaired." CC:DA concurred with the Library of Congress preference. A special MARC field may also be created to store information on close-captioning.

Definition of Edition: CC:DA unanimously accepted the recommendation of its Task Force on the Definition of Edition that the present definition of "edition" in AACR2 not be changed, and that the "multiple versions" approach be considered an exception to the AACR2 rules. When further comments have been heard on the "multiple versions" cataloging guidelines, the Committee will address the need to reconcile the multiple versions technique with the definition of "edition," and with AACR2 Rule 0.24 (which states that "the starting point for description is the physical form of the item in hand, not the original or any previous form in which the work has been published").

Illustration Statements (AACR2 Rule 2.5C2): While the Library of Congress prefers "ill." as the summary statement for illustrative matter in the physical description area (300 field, subfield b), other libraries follow AACR2rev rule 2.5C2 and note the various types of illustrations more fully. The need was voiced for the addition of "computer drawings" to the list of valid illustration terms; there were also complaints about the rigid alphabetical listing of the types of illustrations in the 300 field.

A CC:DA representative will work with a representative from ARLIS (Art Librarians) on a proposed change for Rule 2.5C2.

The draft of the Concise Guidelines for Bibliographic Descriptions of Monographs ISBD(M): This "concise" ISBD(M) is meant to be a simplified alternative to the full ISBD(M) for use by catalogers in the international arena who lack a national code like AACR2. CC:DA established a Task Force to review the document as requested by IFLA.

MARBI Report: This spring the new MARC country codes will be available reflecting recent political changes in the former Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, etc. By this summer MARBI expects to have published papers from the 1992 Preconference on Format Integration. The need for three new MARC characters will also be discussed at the MARBI meetings this summer; these characters are the sharp sign for music, the section symbol used in law materials, and the underline symbol.

Report from the Library of Congress Cataloging Directorate: LC hopes to eliminate its cataloging arrearage by the year 2000. (In 1990 the cataloging arrearage had reached a high of 40 million records.) LC's Enhanced Cataloging Division is now using copy from OCLC and RLIN to process English, French, Italian, and Spanish monographs as well as commercial sound recordings; RLIN copy is also used for Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Arabic, and Hebrew cataloging. LC has 4.8 million records from its pre-1968 shelflist that are in machine-readable form but possess some deficiencies; since costs run high for manual record-by-record upgrades, LC hopes for funding from Congress to upgrade these records cost effectively through matching records in the OCLC database; an experimental preliminary project with OCLC is currently underway. Thanks to grant funding, the Library of Congress has begun to analyze the cost-benefits of providing enhanced access to cataloging records through inclusion of subject words from indexes and tables of contents. The Library of Congress has also let several contracts to convert the LC Classification Tables to machine-readable form and is progressing towards automated shelving at LC. The restructuring of LC's Cataloging divisions into specialized teams, the Cataloger Exchange Program, and other changes at the Library of Congress were also discussed.

ALA Preconferences: CC:DA and the ACRL Science and Technology section have planned a preconference on Bibliographic Control of Conference Proceedings. Pending formal approval from ALCTS, the preconference is to be held in Miami preceding the 1994 ATLA annual meeting. A preconference on Multiple Versions is also in the planning stages, perhaps for 1994.

Non-CC:DA Addendum: Ergonomic workstations: At their ALA mid-winter meeting, the Heads of Cataloging (known as the BIG HEADS) touched on the important issue of ergonomic workstations for all of us who work at video display terminals. Adjustable ergonomic chairs and worktables, proper screen and keyboard positions, as well as proper lighting and time limitations at the terminal were recognized as essential in creating a healthier work environment.

A TRIBUTE TO THOMAS EDWARD CAMP
UPON HIS RETIREMENT

Thomas Edward Camp was chosen and called to be the Librarian of the Library of the School of Theology in Sewanee by Dean George Alexander in July 1957. This was a devout and serious call. Nurtured in the Church and a time of exploration at Vanderbilt Divinity School, Ed considered his life and work as response to God's call to Christian service through his vocation as theological librarian.

In light of this conviction, Ed was often impatient with those who failed to see the theology library as central to theological education at Sewanee and to the shaping of the future of the Church's ministry. As a member of the faculty of theology, he brought wisdom and judgement over the years to the great questions of curriculum development and to the fashioning of a library collection to support the educational programs. The great achievement of the 35 years of his untiring service to the University is the present collection of over 120,000 books, non-print items, and bound periodicals.

Sewanee's theological library is considered by many to be one of the outstanding collections of excellence in its class among libraries of the member schools of the Association of Theological Schools. It supports work at the master's and doctoral levels. Visiting scholars have praised it. The library is the monument to Ed's life work.

Ed was graduated with the A.B. degree from Centenary College in Shreveport, Louisiana, in 1950. He was enrolled in Vanderbilt Divinity School in 1950-51. He was trained in librarianship at Louisiana State University from 1951 to 1953 and received the M.S. degree. Following two years of service in the United States Army, he became Circulation Librarian at Bridwell Library of the Perkins Divinity School of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. He remained there from 1955 to 1957 and from there he came to Sewanee.

Ed's chief mentors were two of the outstanding theological librarians in the United States - Raymond Morris of Yale and Decherd Turner of Perkins under whom Ed worked while employed there. Morris' influence in theological librarianship led him to be called the unofficial dean of American theological librarians; and Turner went on to the coveted directorship of the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center at the University of Texas at Austin. Ed considers collection development his primary interest and concern. He is also an accomplished reference librarian. These skills underlie his achievement of building the Library of the School of Theology and his contribution to the education of countless students who join in his praises.

An important work which Ed undertook during his tenure was to organize the library development program in the years 1961-1965. Grants to the University for the School of Theology Library by the Sealantic Fund tripled the School of Theology acquisitions budget, and this augmented level of funding has continued to the present time.

Ed's retirement on January 31 marked the end of a critical era in library development at Sewanee. His lifetime's accomplishment is the foundation for the future of the theology library.

INTERLIBRARY LOAN WORKSHOP REPORT

A lively day-long pre-conference workshop at the annual ATLA meeting in Dallas on June 16, 1992, produced several results:

A. The group began to draft an interlibrary loan code for presentation to the full membership of ATLA. A committee was appointed to continue developing the code for eventual presentation at the annual conference. Committee members are: M. Patrick Graham, Pitts Theology Library at Emory University; Drew Kadel, Union Theological Library in New York City; Genevieve Luna, Stitt Library at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary; James Pakala, Library Director at Covenant Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Missouri; Gilles Poitras of the Flora Lawson Hewlett Library, Graduate Theological Union; and Bonnie VanDelinder, Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Convener.

B. ATLA member libraries are asked to help now by: 1) Identifying your library as an ATLA member on interlibrary loan requests. Unfortunately, we do not always recognize each other! 2) Flagging interlibrary loan requests you receive from other ATLA libraries so that you (and we) will know how many such requests you actually receive, and what percentage of your total volume of ILL these requests constitute.

Both of these measures will aid us in making decisions about the provisions of the proposed code. To assist you in identifying other ATLA member libraries, two lists are appended to this report. The first is an alphabetical listing of OCLC symbols for ATLA member libraries, followed by the name and location of the participating institution. The second is an alphabetical roster of member libraries, followed by their OCLC symbols. If any library has been inadvertently omitted, we apologize.

CATHEDRAL LIBRARY OPENS BARBARA SIMONDS COLLECTION

The Cathedral Library of St. John the Divine in New York City announces the installation in the Library of the Barbara Simonds Cornerstone Collection of Ecumenical Study Documents and Papers. The collection represents the extensive papers and correspondence of Miss Barbara Simonds (1890-1989), a woman who in her ninety-nine years developed friendships and interests in diverse and original combinations. Miss Simonds established the Cornerstone Library and Studio in the 1930's, which eventually found its home in Rome. There Miss Simonds organized and hosted pilgrimages for all Christians to promote understanding and unity among the churches. Her interest in ecumenism stemmed from her conviction that church unity was necessary for world peace. She also felt that the single woman had a particular and valuable contribution to make. Her combined dedication to church unity and to enhancing the status of the single woman led her to study Queen Elizabeth I and the Tudor period and culminated in the publication of Elizabeth I's devotional prayers. The collection is an important resource for anyone interested in aspects of her biography and her work. It includes her notebooks, correspondence, archives from the Cornerstone Library, manuscripts, recorded interviews and a slide collection. The collection welcomes any interested in these diverse papers. They should communicate with Charlotte Jones, Cathedral Library, 1047 Amsterdam Avenue, New York, New York 10025.

ATLA CONFERENCE TO DISPLAY MEMBERS' PUBLICATIONS

During the Annual Conference in Vancouver this spring, the Publication Section is hoping to have a display of ATLA members' own publications. This will be informal and - we expect - informative. If you have published one or two works (books, periodical articles) in the last few years in any field of study, please bring it along to Vancouver and we will try to find display space for it. As protected space may be limited, we suggest you offer a photocopy of articles, rather than the original.

MARY KANSFIELD AUTHORS BOOK ON ENGLISH EDUCATION

The Pickwick Publications has just published An American Understanding of English Education, written by Mary L. Kansfield, the wife of long-time ATLA member Norman Kansfield. The book is one of the products of the Kansfields' 1989/1990 sabbatical in Oxford. Ms. Kansfield explores six major areas of difference between the English and the American systems of education. Those areas include: 1) Terminology, 2) Placement, 3) Schedules, 4) Curriculum, 5) Foreign Language Study, and 6) Accountability: Examinations and Grades. The discussion of each difference focuses on three questions: 1) What is the character of the difference, 2) What does this difference mean for Americans, and 3) What steps can American families take to cope with each difference. The book values the uniqueness of each system, while attempting to present the useful kind of information which American travellers to England and English visitors in the United States will find valuable as they plan for and make reasonable expectations of their children's school experience. The book can be ordered from: Pickwick Publications, 4137 Timberland Drive, Allison Park, Pennsylvania 15101. ISBN 1-55634-01603. CIP 92-15882. Paperback; $8.00 plus $2.00 postage US and Canada.

BACK ISSUES OF JOURNAL AVAILABLE

For many years, the office of the Evangelical Theological Society was located in the building of the Reformed Theological Seminary Library in Jackson, Mississippi. The office recently relocated to Liberty University in Virginia, and the retiring Executive Secretary left behind a large number of back issues of the Journal of the Evangelical Theological Society. These are available free of charge - except for the cost of postage over $1.00 - to any library, anywhere (please, no personal orders). While the Journals will continue to be offered on ATLA Periodical Exchange Lists, other libraries which receive the Newsletter may be interested in acquiring some issues. Please address all requests to: Belinda Wooley, Reformed Theological Seminary Library, 5422 Clinton Boulevard, Jackson, Mississippi 39209.
